TEXT-BOOKS, AND BOOKS OF REFERENCE.

The following books are recommended in the Classical Department: Zumpt's Latin Grammar; Andrews' or Leverett's Latin Lexicon; Crosby's Greek Grammar; Liddell's and Scott's Greek Lexicon; Anthon's Classical Dictionary; Munk's Greek and Roman Metres; Eschenberg's Manual of Classical Literature; Butler's Ancient Atlas; Bloomfield's Greek Testament; Robinson's Lexicon of the New Testament; Stuart's Grammar of the New Testament Dialect; Worcester's Dictionary of the English Language.

In the Department of Modern Languages are recommended Ollendorff's Grammars; Elementary French Reader, by De Fivas; Classical French Reader, by De Fivas; French Dictionary, by Fleming and Tibbins, 8vo edition; Neuman and Baretti's Spanish Dictionary, 8vo. (edition by Velasquez;) Don Quijote, (Appleton & Co.'s publication;) Adler's Progressive German Reader; Adler's German Dictionary; Foresti's Italian Reader; Baretti's Italian Dictionary, 8vo.

TERMS OF ADMISSION:

Candidates for admission into the Freshman Class must be prepared to sustain an approved examination on English Grammar, Arithmetic, and Geography, Ancient and Modern; on the Latin and Greek Grammars, Latin Reader, Cæsar's Commentaries, Virgil, and Bullion's Greek Reader, or other Greek and Latin authors equivalent to these; and on Algebra, as far as through equations of the first degree.

A candidate for advanced standing, whether from another College or not, is examined in the various branches to which the class he proposes to enter has attended. Students who, from want of means, or from other considerations, desire to pursue an irregular course, may do so, with the consent of their parents or guardians. Applicants for admission are required to present testimonials of good moral character; and, if from other Colleges, certificates of good standing and regular dismission.

TUITION FEES AND OTHER EXPENSES.

Tuition Fee in College, per session, for Freshman and Sophomore classes,	$25 00
Junior and Senior classes,	30 00
Boarding, including lodging, fuel, and lights, per month,	10 00 to 12 00
Room-rent in College building, for each student, per session,	3 00

A fee of two dollars per session is paid by each student for contingent expenses.

There are some minor expenses, which result from taxes voluntarily imposed by classes or societies. In other incidental expenses, if money is furnished, or permission given to contract debts, a student may be extravagant. To guard against this, it is earnestly recommended to all parents and guardians not to authorize the obtaining of credit, unless under the special supervision of some friend. Boarding can be procured at the above prices in the most respectable families in the place.

The fees for tuition must, in all cases, be paid in advance, and a receipt obtained from the Treasurer, to be presented to the Clerk of the Faculty. Without such certificates, or some other satisfactory arrangement with the Faculty, no student will be permitted to recite. The Trustees will hold the Faculty responsible for the tuition fees of those who may be admitted to recitation in violation of this provision.

Those entering under scholarships, or as ministers, or candidates for the ministry, will obtain from the Treasurer certificates of that fact, which will also be presented to the Clerk of the Faculty.

SCHOOL-KEEPING.

Meritorious students, whose circumstances require it, may, at the discretion of the Faculty, be absent for a limited time for the purpose of keeping school.

LITERARY SOCIETIES,

There are three Literary Societies connected with the College, with libraries of well selected books. The object of these associations is chiefly improvement in composition and oratory.

YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION.

The young men of the University, in connection with young men of the town, have organized a Young Men's Christian Association on a plan similar to that of the most successful institutions of the kind. Every student should be under the restraining influences of such an association.

Tuition Fee, - - - - $10 to $15

A fee of one dollar and a half per session is paid by each student for contingent expenses.

SESSIONS AND VACATIONS.

The collegiate year is divided into two sessions. The winter session begins on the second Monday in September, and terminates on the last Thursday in January. The summer session begins on the following Monday, and terminates on the last Thursday in June, which is commencement day.

ADVICE TO PARENTS AND GUARDIANS.

1. When you send your son or ward to the University, signify in a letter to the President whether he is to take a regular or irregular course; and if the latter, what particular branches he is to study. This will prevent those frequent and pernicious changes so common with boys left to their own will. A regular course is earnestly recommended to all whose circumstances will permit them to take it; but, if such be the desire of the parents or guardians of students, any particular branch of literature or science will be taught; but each student must have his whole time occupied.

2. The occasions should be very rare that you should consent for your son or ward to leave the University during the sessions, on visits home or otherwise. This is apt to be allowed during the Christmas holidays, without sufficient regard to the effect it may have on the studies the whole session. The Faculty generally allow a few days at Christmas for recreation—as much time as they think it safe for the students to lose from their studies.

3. Do not put much money into the pocket of your son or ward, nor allow him to contract unnecessary debts. Send him always, if practicable, at the beginning of the session. He should answer to his name in the Chapel at ten o'clock on the day of opening.

GRADUATING CLASS OF 1858.

Samuel P. Chesnutt,	Isaac N. Biddle,
Robert L. McElree,	Fontaine R. Earle.

Those wholly devoted to the studies of this Department are required to attend daily recitations in the text-books. Of those partially devoted to theological pursuits, such recitations are required as their time and circumstances will justify. As a general rule, however, all who recite in this Department, prepare one or more recitations each day.

A written Lecture is delivered each week upon Systematic Theology. In addition to this, the President of the University delivers a weekly Lecture upon some practical subject connected with theological pursuits.

EXPLANATION.

All those reciting in the Theological Department are required to undergo a careful examination upon each lecture upon Systematic Theology the morning after its delivery. All young men in the Institution preparing for the ministry are encouraged to attend these lectures. There is a meeting every Saturday morning in the Instructor's room, where the students are required to deliver extempore discourses, in the form of sermons, expositions of particular passages of Scripture, or some of the leading doctrines or duties of our holy religion. The object of these weekly meetings is to give the students some practical preparation for their great work. They are attended with interest, and found to be highly beneficial.

It is intended to make the course of studies thorough, and as full as possible for the time appropriated. Two years is the length of time fixed upon for the Theological Course. Candidates for the ministry who are pursuing their Collegiate Course here, can, by industry and economy of time, take one or two studies in the Theological Department in connection with their Collegiate studies, and thus, by commencing early enough, can complete the Theological Course in one year after completing their College Course. Every advantage of this kind will be afforded of which the student may be able or feel disposed to avail himself.

OBJECTS OF THE THEOLOGICAL SCHOOL.

It is the desire of those in charge of the Theological Department to contribute, as far as they may be able, towards furnishing to the Church not only an intelligent but a practical ministry. The text-books are eminently practical. Practical habits are encouraged among the young men here. As heretofore stated, there is a weekly meeting in the Instructor's room, for practical exercise. In addition to this, by preaching in vacant congregations around, and laboring in Sunday-schools in destitute neighborhoods, they make themselves useful, and acquire such habits as must greatly increase their usefulness hereafter. A ministry so educated cannot fail to be a blessing to the Church. We do not believe that the highest degree of intellectual culture has any tendency to impair, but rather to improve, the spirituality of religion, when the culture is connected with practical religious habits.

APPEAL TO THE CHURCH.

This Department has been organized a little more than three years. The state of the funds has justified the appointment of but one Professor. The organization is, therefore, imperfect. The single Professor has, however, been able, by giving instruction in Hebrew and the Greek Testament, and by delivering a regular Course of Lectures upon Systematic Theology, and other subjects connected with Theological study, and hearing the recitations of the classes in the text-books, to meet, thus far, all the requisitions of the department. The President of the University, and the pastor of the congregation in Lebanon, also deliver regular lectures on subjects connected with this department. It is a cherished object with the Board of Trustees, and we trust with the whole Church, to place the Theological School on a permanent and enlarged basis, and to make its organization as full and perfect as possible. We consider an intelligent, enlightened, and devoted ministry, the great want of the age; and we are fully satisfied that such a ministry cannot be furnished to the Cumberland Presbyterian Church without the kind of facilities which we are endeavoring to afford here. We trust that every member of the Church will esteem it a duty to contribute, according to the ability which God has given, to the support and promotion of this department. It should be patronized: it should be liberally endowed. A full endowment is essential, as its instructions are expected to be gratuitous.—While instructors are thus laboring, they must be supported. Moreover, the most thoroughly educated, the best men in the Church, must be placed in charge of this department, and such men should be compensated for their services.

A Theological Library is also greatly needed. A good library is an indispensable appendage of this Department. A beginning has been made in this work. A few friends have made liberal contributions, and the nucleus of a library has been formed. Much more, however, must be done, and ought to be done speedily. We look to private liberality alone for the supply of this want. The Board have no means as yet of supplying it themselves. It is hoped that so important an object will not be overlooked by those who are able to contribute towards its attainment.

JUDGE EWING'S DONATION.

In the course of the present scholastic year, Hon. Ephraim M. Ewing, of Russelville, Ky., has made a large donation in property to the Trustees of the University for the benefit of the Theological Department. The value of the property is not yet fully ascertained, but there is no doubt that it will prove sufficient for the endowment of one Professorship. A Professorship has accordingly been established and named in honor of the donor, the "Ewing Professorship." This is the most munificent donation which has ever been made by a single member of the Church, for the promotion of any single object. It is hoped that so noble an example will be imitated by many others.

The scholastic year in the Theological Department will hereafter commence the second Monday in September, and close the last Saturday in May. A long vacation is given, that both instructors and pupils may have a suitable season for practical labor in the ministry.

COURSE OF STUDY.

JUNIOR YEAR.

First Session.	Second Session.
Algebra, (Davies' Bourdon.)	Trigonometry and Mensuration, (Davies'.)
Geometry, (Davies' Legendre.)	Land Surveying, (Gillespie.)
Roads and Railroads, (Gillespie.)	Descriptive Geometry, (Davies'.)
Industrial Drawing, (Mahan's.)	Shades, Shadows, and Perspective, (Davies'.)

SENIOR YEAR.

First Session.	Second Session.
Analytical Geometry (Church's)	Calculus, (Church's.)
Mechanics, (Bartlett's or Weisbach's.)	Mechanics, (Weisbach's.)
Field Engineering, (Henck's.)	Bridge Construction, (Haupt's.)
Civil Engineering, (Mahan's.)	Stone-Cutting—Plates.

Students will be taught Drawing—Topographical, Mechanical, etc., with Shading and Tinting; and be allowed ample opportunity for Field Practice with the Surveying Instruments.

Many young men in the West seek employment on railroad surveys, with the view of becoming civil engineers, who do not possess a respectable knowledge of even the elementary branches of Mathematics. The invariable result is failure, except in rare cases, where a high order of talent and an unusual degree of perseverance are combined. A professional education is more essential to success in this pursuit than in Medicine, Law, or Theology. The design of the Engineering Department is to afford facilities for the acquisition of such an education. The course of study embraces the entire range of pure Mathematics, the theory of the various branches of Engineering, and as much practical instruction as can be imparted in a school.

Two Professors will devote as much time to this Department as its exigencies may demand. Students will be qualified, on the completion of the course, to take charge of surveying parties on railroads.

On admission, students will be classed according to their advancement. From one to two years will be required to complete the course.

For the regular course of Engineering, a tuition fee of $50 and a contingent fee of $2 per session will be charged.

For the sum of fifty-two dollars, a complete course of Land Surveying will be given, embracing Geometry, Trigonometry, and Mensuration, Gillespie's Land Surveying, Plotting, and field practice with the Compass and Chain. A few months only will be required for this course—from three to five—and the student, on completing it, will be fully qualified for the business of surveying land.

Students in other departments of the University who may desire it, will be taught a course of Industrial Drawing, with shading and tinting. The text-books used will be Descriptive Geometry, Shades, Shadows and Perspective, and Mahan's Industrial Drawing. Two lessons each week will be given, and two sessions will be required to complete the course. The fee will be $12 50 per session, and those only can commence this course who have studied Geometry and Trigonometry. Tuition, in all cases, must be paid in advance, and no part will be refunded.

Sessions and vacations same as in Collegiate Department.

Applications for admission or information should be made to Professor Andrew H. Buchanan.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

HISTORY OF THE SCHOOL.

For some time prior to 1847, the senior professor had contemplated the establishment of a Law School somewhere in Tennessee. In February of that year he proposed to the President of the Board of Trustees of Cumberland University, to establish it as a Department of that University, upon one condition. He was then occupying the Circuit Bench, and the term for which he was elected would not expire until 1852. As he would have to resign this position, he required the personal guaranty of the President that the income of the school should be equal to his judicial salary for the residue of his term. This proposition was agreed to, and the school was opened on the 1st of October, 1847.

Its income for the first year exceeded the amount of the judicial salary. The great and unexpected influx of students at the commencement of the second year, rendered it necessary to procure another professor. Judge Green, of the Supreme Bench, was chosen to that position, agreeing to serve during the vacations of the Supreme Court. As the sessions of that Court would interfere for three or four months of the year with the sessions of the School, it was found necessary to have another professor, to serve in the absence of Judge Green. The arrangement of the Chancery Courts rendered it practicable for Chancellor Ridley to supply the place of Judge Green in his absence, and he was elected a professor. He continued to serve until Judge Green resigned his seat on the Supreme Bench in 1852, and entered fully and exclusively upon the duties of his professorship.

In the winter of 1855–6, the increased patronage of the School demanded another professor, when N. Green, Jr., was elected.—He had entered the School as a student on the first day of its existence. After graduating, he went into the practice of his profession at the Lebanon Bar, where he was enjoying a flourishing business, when he entered the school as a professor.

To show the progress of the School, we submit a statement of its numbers for every year of its existence:

First Year,	1847–8	25
Second Year,	1848–9	56
Third Year,	1849–50	48
Fourth Year,	1850–51	74
Fifth Year,	1851–2	86
Sixth Year,	1852–3	70
Seventh Year,	1853–4	87
Eighth Year,	1854–5	100
Ninth Year,	1855–6	134
Tenth Year,	1856–7	167
Eleventh Year,	1857–8	188

For the guidance of those who wish to know the true statistics of the Law Schools of the United States, we would remark that our scholastic year consists of two sessions. The number of students who entered the first session of the present year was 157; the number who entered the second session was 118. Were our catalogue made out by adding these together, the number would be 275. But this would be counting twice those students of the second session who had been in the school the first session. We therefore merely add to the catalogue of the first session the names of the new students who enter the second session. This makes a correct annual catalogue.

It will be seen that this school has been regularly progressive with the exception of two years. Whether it shall continue so or not will depend mainly upon two considerations—the activity of its friends, and the approbation of the legal profession.

Its fruits are now scattered all over the country, and by them it will be judged. For the benefit of those who have not that means of forming a correct judgment, we submit our

PLAN OF INSTRUCTION.

It is only by exerting the energies of his own mind that a student can qualify himself for the bar. Any plan which would propose to make a lawyer of him without his doing the hard work for himself, would be idle and visionary. The virtue of any plan of instruction must consist of two things:

1. Its being calculated to make him work, or, in other words, study diligently.

2. Its so guiding and directing his work that it will not be wasted, but will, in the best way and in the shortest time, qualify him to practice law.

First: It must be such a plan as is best calculated to make him study.

Our plan is, to give him a lesson every day, and examine him on it next day from one to three hours. He has to answer questions in the presence of the whole class. If he has any spirit in him—any pride of character—any sense of shame—this will insure the closest application of which he is capable, for indolence is sure to sink him to a degraded position in his class.

There are only two other plans of getting a legal education. One is the old plan of studying in lawyers' offices: the other is the old Law School plan of teaching by lectures. Neither of these has any thing in it to secure application. The student is brought to no daily examination to test his proficiency. There is not the presence of a large class, in which he has to take rank either high or low. All that is calculated to stimulate him to constant, laborious application, is wanting in both these plans.

Secondly: The plan should not only be calculated to make a student work, but it ought to so guide and direct him, as to make him work to the greatest advantage.

A man may work very hard, but still, so unwisely, that he will accomplish no valuable object. It is equally so with the farmer, the mechanic, and the law student. The student ought to have such a course of study assigned him, and be conducted through it in such a way, as that he will understand at the end of his pupilage the greatest amount of pure, living, American law, and will know best how to apply it in practice. So brief is the period that they can be induced to spend in preparation for the bar, that it requires a very careful selection of text-books, and a careful supervision of their studies, to make their labors profitable. We have made our course American. Important as it is to trace the history of the law from its original sources, through all its mutations, it is not the appropriate work of the very short term which is in our country employed in preparation for license.

To direct their minds to what is most important in the text-books; to teach them what is, and what is not, settled; to correct the errors into which they may fall; to dispel the darkness that hangs upon many passages—this is necessary every day, and at every step of their progress. The law is a vast science, and a very difficult one; and the student needs every possible facility, to enable him, by the most arduous labor, to comprehend its leading elementary principles in fifteen months.

But this is not all he has to do. He has to learn how to apply these principles in practice. This is the art of his profession, and he can only learn it by practice. It is as necessary a preparation for assuming the responsibilities of a lawyer as the learning of the science. If he learns it at the bar, it is at the expense of his client. If he learns it in the School, it is at his own expense.

Our Moot Courts, which are held daily, fulfil this condition of a legal education. We usually submit a statement of facts to students: one for the plaintiff, and one for the defence. An action is to be brought, and carried through all the processes known to the Tennessee law of practice—pleadings, jury-trials, appeals, and all. Thus the attentive student will, in the course of three sessions, become pretty well acquainted with all the leading features of practice; and he will have learned it in the only way whereby any art can be learned—by actual practice.

It is sometimes objected to any attempt to teach the practice, that it must necessarily be confined to the laws of Tennessee, and would not be adapted to any other State. But the truth is, the essential principles of the law of practice are the same in every State. And the student who learns the Tennessee practice can just as easily adapt himself to local modifications in any other State, as a tailor, who has once learned his trade, can adapt his art to any change of fashion.

COURSE OF STUDY.

The School is divided into three classes: Junior, Middle, and Senior; each employing one session of five months in the studies allotted to it. These are, in the JUNIOR CLASS.

The History of a Law Suit; Hilliard's American Jurisprudence; Stephens's Pleading; Kent's Commentaries; Story on Promissory Notes.

MIDDLE CLASS.

Story on Bailments; Story on Agency; Story's Equity Jurisprudence; Story's Pleading; Greenleaf on Evidence; Bishop's Criminal Law.

SENIOR CLASS.

Story on Conflict of Laws; Angell and Ames on Corporations; Lomax on Executors; Parsons on Contracts; Hilliard on Vendors; 4 Kent reviewed; Story on the Constitution.

This course is very imperfect. But it is necessarily so. The question with us has been, whether the very short time the student devotes to preparation had better be spent in studying those venerable English authors who present the law as it was, or the American authors, who present it as it is. He must study the former before he can claim to be a learned lawyer, and he will study them if he aspires to an elevated rank in his profession.—But as the design of his scholastic course is, or ought to be, to fit him, as far as possible, for discharging the duties of a lawyer, we think it is best that he should first acquire a knowledge of American jurisprudence, as it now exists and exerts a living power; and, for want of time, we are compelled to reject many books that would be important to effect this end.

The student furnishes his own books. They may be usually obtained in the Lebanon bookstores.

A student enters whatever class he chooses. But if he enters the Middle or Senior Class, with a view to graduation, he must first be examined on his previous reading.

No previous professional reading or literary qualification is required for admission.

SESSIONS.

The Fall Session commences on the second Monday in September, and ends on the last Thursday in January. The Spring Session commences on the succeeding Monday, and ends on the last Thursday in June.

EXPENSES.

Tuition fee, $50 per session. A proportional deduction is made when a student enters at an advanced period of the session.

Contingent fee, $2.

These fees must be paid before admission. No part of the fee is refunded on any account whatever.

Boarding is from $2 to $3 per week.
